TREMENDOUS WELCOME TO CANDIDATE; PROGRESS TO GARDEN A TRIUMPH.

Statement Dictated to The Evening World
By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN:

I shall speak extemporaneously at all the meetings in New York City to-night. I have made only four set speeches in this campaign, and these I read from manuscript. Four years ago when I read my speech in Madison Square Garden, I was criticised for so doing. To-night I shall follow my usual custom and speak without preparation.

What will I speak about? I cannot tell just at this moment, for I do not know myself. But there is not lack of material. There are enough topics for a dozen speeches. I do not know what I shall say or how I shall say it. I usually decide that on the spur of the moment.

But what better subjects does a man want than those great topics that are appealing to the entire American people—imperialism, the colonial policy of the Administration, the rights of the Filipinos and Cubans, the trusts, freedom of thought and liberty for everybody. Yes, I think there are enough topics.

If liberty triumphs here, then it will triumph around the globe. If this nation wins its fight and resists temptation, then the oppressed of every nation will thank God that our Republic is here. Then we will go on from victory to victory, until Liberty is known the world around; until there are no kings, no thrones, but everywhere people are regarded as the source of power.

BRYAN SPEAKS AT GARDEN; GREAT CROWD CHEERS HIM.

Though but a few hundred feet from the Hoffman House to Madison Square Garden, the carriage in which William Jennings Bryan rode from the hotel to the big auditorium was a long time in making the trip.

Hardly a foot a second could the driver, proud to drive Col. Bryan, urge his horse.

Despite the snap wind and rain squall of the late afternoon, fully 25,000 persons blocked the streets and avenues around the hotel and the Garden.

He advanced to the car in which he knew Mr. Bryan was as the train slowed down into the station, and glanced eagerly up at the car windows. A moment later he caught a glimpse of Mr. Bryan as he came down the car steps and stood smiling, but evidently surprised at the throng about him.

A wild scene followed. Roar upon roar echoed and re-echoed in the great structure. The throng, wild with excitement and enthusiasm, surged toward Mr. Bryan, cheering, struggling and striking.

"Back, back there!" commanded Capt. Price, who with eight of his biggest bluecoats cleared a pathway for Mr. Croker to approach.

And they met the Tammany Chief, with both hands extended in welcome, came toward Mr. Bryan. His face was wreathed in smiles.

"Glad to see you," Mr. Croker. "I am glad, glad to see you," said Mr. Croker.

Mr. Bryan grasped one hand in both of his. "Thank you, thank you. What crowds," he replied.

MRS. GOULD FIGHTS JURY.

Millionaire's Wife Wants Referee for Dress-makers' Suit.

Mrs. Howard Gould does not want a jury to listen to the testimony in the suit brought against her by her dressmakers, Mary F. Smith and Margaretta Dillon. In the City Court to-day her husband appealed to Justice MacCall to send the matter to a referee.

While Howard Gould is named as the defendant in the suit brought by the dressmakers, it is for goods furnished and work done for Mrs. Katherine Gould, his wife, that collection is sought.

It is alleged that some of the work done by the dressmakers was defective, and Mrs. Gould asserts that she refused to accept the dresses. Then she also asserts that the plaintiffs ruined a lot of her goods.

RUSSIA JOINS WITH CHINA.

Won't Act with Powers and Has All It Wants.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—The Russian Government permits it to become known that its attitude in China will be increasing independence of the concert of the powers.

Russia is disposed to attach less value to joint action since her interests have been fully secured by the successful campaign in Manchuria. Moreover, Russia is not willing to "follow the irrevocable policy of some of the powers."

The expectation is that the Chinese Government is about to utilize all its resources to resist the demands of the powers.

Its policy is to keep the Powers occupied with vain negotiations and proposals and the despatching of notes in order to gain time until the winter, counting on the rigor of the climate to prevent military operations and allow China to gather her resources for a Spring campaign.

SCHARN FREE, IN HIS SWEETHEART'S ARMS.

Nettie Harris Kisses and Embraces Lad Who Was Suspected of Sister's Murder.

Judge Newburger in Part I. of General Sessions at 11 o'clock this morning discharged from custody Frederick Scharn, the lad who was under suspicion of having murdered his sister, Katie Scharn, the factory girl.

A coroner's jury a few days ago, after a three-day's session, exonerated Scharn. He has been in the Tombs since the murder on the charge of stealing a gold watch from Mrs. Annie Kehoe, a tenant in the house in which Scharn's sister was killed.

Lewyer Emanuel M. Friend made the motion for the boy's release before Judge Newburger, Assistant District Attorney Daniel O'Reilly did not oppose it, but in fact suggested to the Court that it would be the best thing to do.

Outside the court-room Nettie Harris, the faithful sweetheart of young Scharn, walked nervously up and down the long corridors anxiously awaiting the result.

As young Scharn came out of the door she threw herself into his arms and kissed him repeatedly. They left the building in company with Mr. Friend.
